of energy for a greater vitality

Désialis

Dehydrated sugar beet pulp is a simple and natural feed whose nutritional qualities are preserved and stabilized by dehydration process.

EQUIBEET derives from sugar beet grown and processed in France, providing the assurance of an unmolassed, fully traceable, GMO-free and NOPS-free product.

EQUIBEET makes rations safer by adding highly digestible fibres.

A LOW-SUGAR AND LOW-STARCH SOURCE OF ENERGY

With an energy value close to cereals, sugar beet pulp fibre is more easily digestible than hay. The introduction of EQUIBEET into the ration lowers the level of starch and thus reduces the risk of diseases related to excess cereal (particularly through the reduction of glycemic index).

As with any fibre, EQUIBEET is digested primarily in the large hindgut. Thus EQUIBEET represents a source of slow-release energy that makes it a useful food for racing and endurance horses.

Physico-chemical properties that improve digestibility

The prebiotic effect of sugar beet pulp enhances the other fodder in the ration by improving its digestibility.

A GOOD WATER ABSORPTION CAPACITY

Sugar beet pulp has good water absorption capacity that helps maintain sufficient water levels in the large intestine during periods of hydric restriction.
